Description:

Radnor Township, founded in 1682, is located 13 miles west of Philadelphia and comprises more than 30,000 people. Radnor Township School District covers nearly 14 square miles and includes St. Davids and parts of Wayne, Rosemont, Bryn Mawr, Villanova, Ithan, Newtown Square and Radnor. The school system, which serves a diverse, multicultural population, includes three elementary, one middle and one high school.

Board of School Directors:

The Radnor Township School District is governed by a volunteer, nine-member, elected school board, all of whose members live in the township. Each board member is elected for a four-year term. The board conducts monthly committee and business meetings. The public is invited to attend all public meetings and work sessions.

Budget: 2011-2012 school year – $76,613,114
