Course Description

This Radnor Middle School Accelerated Eighth Grade Social Studies course focuses on the period of American History that begins with the development of the 13 Colonies and proceeds through the United States of America's Civil War and Reconstruction. This writing intensive course utilizes a variety of primary source documents, advanced supplemental readings, complex comparative analyses of current events, and an extensive research project to conduct a thorough examination of the birth and growth of the United States of America. Success in this course requires skills that are two or more years above grade level in reading, writing, and thinking. The curriculum was created in accordance with Common Core Standards and the Pennsylvania Standards for Social Studies: Civics and Government, Economics, History, and Geography. This course is designed for maximum academic rigor and to provide a solid foundation for high-level high school coursework.

Course Objectives:

In addition to being able to explain how the 13 British Colonies were established, grew into a major economic and political force, fought for their independence, created their own new form of government, and ultimately evolved into a world power that became engaged in a civil war, students will be able to analyze and discuss the following questions:

- How does the scarcity of resources trigger conflicts?
- What is the appropriate level of government involvement in a nation's economy?
- How does the pursuit of wealth and prosperity impact human behavior and cultivate competing regional interests?
- How does the theory of natural human rights provide a foundation for a republican form of government?
- How does a government balance its power to rule its citizens with its responsibility to protect individual civil liberties?
- What were the driving forces behind the economic and political expansion of westward movement?
- How did sectionalism influence the outbreak of the Civil War?
- What form of resistance is the most effective in a given circumstance?
- How have historical events shaped our world today?
- Why is this important to me today?

Students will also discuss and analyze the following Enduring Understandings:

- Knowledge of the past helps us understand the present and prepares us for the future.
- Individuals can influence history by exercising their rights and responsibilities as citizens in a democracy.
- Historical perspectives are often influenced by cultural perspectives.

The quest for wealth is often the primary motivating factor in historical events.
